

LINEAR PROGRESSIONS

While the organization of the Cal Poly Pomona College of Environmental Design's new ENV Downtown center seems complicated, it can be unfolded to two clear, linear progressions. Each strand - studios and everything else - has a clear, linear progression making it easy to understand the circulation of the building. Shortcuts in the form of artificial canyons are inserted to provide quick access between the strands and are seen here in red. The strands meet at the top at a roof terrace making it possible for the entirety of the program to be experienced as one consistent linear progression up one strand and down another.